X Marks the Spot
A Plane Shift: Ixalan Adventure for Dungeons & Dragons
A prison escape for an unlikely group of heroes turns into a race for an ancient relic sought by the Legion of Dusk. Can you brave the unknown and capture the treasure before the enemy does? This D&D adventure is set on the plane of Ixalan, and uses 4th-level pregenerated characters.

A Plane Shift: Ixalan Adventure for Dungeons & Dragons
BACKGROUND

Ixalan is a land of exploration and discovery. But the Legion of Dusk—a vampire society that formed from an alliance of nobles and the church—has recently arrived from overseas to expand its territories. The legion’s army seeks to conquer the island, and the vampires have erected numerous forts in the south. However, their plans have been met with resistance from the inhabitants of Ixalan.

The Sun Empire rules the coast, and has managed to tame dinosaurs enough to work alongside them. Meanwhile, the River Heralds—a loose society of nomadic merfolk tribes—move throughout the interior of Ixalan, at one with nature. These two groups have long held an uneasy accord.

At sea, forces of the piratical Brazen Coalition harry the naval forces of the Legion of Dusk, which make landfall to plunder the bounty of Ixalan as they see fit. But even so, not all vampires view the current ruling establishment as the final authority. The Order of the Five Sacraments, a vampire church sect that believes in establishing a trade relationship with the Sun Empire, hopes to undermine the plans of the would-be conquerors.

OVERVIEW

The Legion of Dusk is ruled by rituals that require its members to feed only from the blood of their foes. As such, the legion fortification known as Conqueror’s Foothold houses prisoners—enemies of the state and others deemed ne’er-do-wells—who are slaughtered once every full moon.

At the start of the adventure, the characters find themselves imprisoned at Conqueror’s Foothold and scheduled to be executed to feed their captors. Alante, a vampire cleric who administers last rites at the fort, aids them in a prison escape. She belongs to the Order of the Five Sacraments, and has been charged with opposing the aims of the Legion of Dusk.

Conqueror’s Foothold is overseen by Vona, known as the Butcher of Magan. Vona has uncovered a map of the local region that shows the location of a powerful artifact known as the Hierophant’s Chalice, hidden in the south of Ixalan at the Temple of Aclazotz. The Hierophant’s Chalice is rumored to be able to create an endless supply of blood, making it potentially valuable to the vampires of the Legion of Dusk. A prophet named Arguel is rumored to have brought the chalice to the temple for unknown reasons, and Vona wishes to secure it.

In exchange for various favors—in addition to escaping from certain death—the adventurers have agreed to help Alante find the artifact first. Journeying across the island from Conqueror’s Foothold to the Temple of Aclazotz takes several days, and brings the characters through dangerous territory and various random encounters.

As they seek the chalice, the characters meet a mad apostle who can lead them to it. At the lost temple that is the chalice’s hiding place, the adventurers must face off against the demonic spawn of a bat-god. They are then able to wrest the chalice from the desiccated body of the prophet, who was led to the temple by the demon.

ADVENTURE HOOKS

The characters are on a mission for the Order of the Five Sacraments to retrieve the Hierophant’s Chalice from the Temple of Aclazotz, deep in the uncharted forests of Ixalan. In addition to the bargains they have struck with the church, each character has been offered 100 gp to retrieve the sacred item and bring it to a rendezvous point south of the island stronghold of Fort Durron.

The backgrounds provided on the character sheets also provide motivations for the characters to come together as a party.

Alante hopes to gain favor with the Order of the Five Sacraments, a sect of the church that believes in establishing a trade relationship with the Sun Empire.

Velisha yearns to expel the unnatural force that is rumored to reside in the Temple of Aclazotz.

Rouxf wants to bring an end to the conflict in this region of Ixalan by ensuring the Order of the Five Sacraments rises to power.

Artinoq desires peace and is eager to show his father that he is a worthy leader.

Turk Two Coins desires to claim a share of a great treasure, so that he can live out the rest of his life in debauchery.

Ellie Redcap wants nothing more than to captain her own ship—by whatever means necessary.

TREASURE

This adventure uses Magic: The Gathering cards to help build momentum toward adventure progression, and to reward interactive play.

You’ll need a handful of Treasure token cards (found in Ixalan booster packs) and a number of cards detailing treasures from the Ixalan set. See “Appendix D: Hidden Plunder” at the end of this adventure for the card list, then shuffle those nontoken cards to make an item deck.

Whenever a player advances an objective, makes an important discovery, or has a good idea, give that player a Treasure token. A player cannot have more than one Treasure token for his or her character. Random encounters then provide an opportunity to uncover a treasure cache. When searching an area, players roll against each other to find treasure, allowing one player to redeem a Treasure token and draw from the item deck.
Starting the Adventure

Once the players have chosen characters, you are ready to begin. Read the following text to set up the scenario and the bargain the characters have made for their freedom:

Your time in the prison cells of Conqueror’s Foothold is drawing to an end—as are your lives. Like all those deemed enemies of the Legion of Dusk, you are set to be executed to feed the vampires who command the fortress. On the night before the full moon, you have been moved to the executioner’s chamber, next in line to be sacrificed.

But what your captors don’t know is that each of you has made a bargain with the cleric, Alante. In exchange for your lives and retrieval of the legendary relic known as the Hierophant’s Chalice, you have been promised various favors from the Order of the Five Sacraments—a vampiric sect that opposes the Legion of Dusk’s thirst for conquest. During your brief time in Conqueror’s Foothold, Alante has been able to communicate a plan of escape by sending message spells at various interludes. Tonight marks the night that plan comes to fruition.

The Great Escape

Read the following to set up the characters’ escape from the forces of the Legion of Dusk:

You stand in a large holding cell awaiting the executioner’s summons. Outside the cell window, a nearly full moon hangs high in the cloudless sky. In the center of the executioner’s chamber, a greataxe lies across a stone block. Chains lined with butcher hooks hang above metal vats stacked and waiting to collect the blood of the executed, and reminding you of your imminent appointment with death.

The guards open the metal grate that seals your cell. Stepping into the chamber beyond, you see the cleric who will oversee your sacrifice. That’s your cue. It’s time to issue last rites . . . to the guards.

The characters have no gear, except for Alante. They are unarmored and can make only unarmed strikes, dealing bludgeoning damage equal to 1 + Strength modifier.

The Legion of Dusk troops stationed at Conqueror’s Foothold are loyal to Vona, Butcher of Magan. Two human guards have escorted the cleric Alante into the cell. One guard carries a set of keys that can be used to open the prison cells, the main door, and the executioner’s hatch (see below). The perimeter of the room is lined with five other cell blocks, each large enough to hold five prisoners but empty at present.

Only one door leads out of the executioner’s chamber. Alante, Turk, and Ellie know that no prisoner has ever successfully escaped from Conqueror’s Foothold, and that to go through that door means a vicious fight against dozens of guards, and no guarantee of finding an exit.

The Executioner’s Hatch

In one corner of the chamber, a padlocked lever stands next to a three-foot-square metal grate. If the lever is unlocked (either with the key carried by the guard or a successful DC 20 Dexterity check using thieves’ tools), it can be pulled to drop the grate open. This reveals the executioner’s hatch—a chute down which bodies are dumped into the ocean after they are drained of life by the vampires in the fort.

A character who succeeds on a DC 10 Intelligence (Investigation) check notes that the slick walls of the chute offer no handholds. This makes it a straight drop into the ocean, and prevents anyone from getting back up this way. Characters who jump through the hatch take no damage when they hit the water, and can then easily swim to shore.

One hour after the characters escape, a new group of guards enters the executioner’s block and sounds an alert (see “Conqueror’s Foothold,” below).

Any character who succeeds on a DC 15 Wisdom (Perception or Survival) check notices a hunter shark in the water. Any party member who takes damage during the fight with the guards attracts its attention and causes the shark to attack.

Conqueror’s Foothold

When the characters reach the beach in the shadow of the fortress, read:

The bastioned fortification of Conqueror’s Foothold towers high above the sheer cliff side. Waves crash along the rocky shoreline, their caps lit by moonlight.

Artinoq’s raptor companion, Sharkbait, waits on the beach with a rucksack containing ten days’ rations. Once he sees his companion, he leads the party to a hidden cache buried in the sand, which contains all their confiscated gear. Alante managed to smuggle it out of the fortress a few days ago.

Exploring Ixalan

Traveling from Conqueror’s Foothold to the Temple of Aclazotz takes three days by way of the beach or four days through the mountains. While moving through certain terrain (Fort Leor and Fort Durron, Primal Wellspring, and Uncharted Territory), random encounters might be triggered. Roll a d20 to check for an encounter once during the day and once during the night. If the result is 18 or higher by day, or 15 or higher at night, a random encounter occurs. Refer to the encounter tables in each region to determine what the adventurers meet, and reroll if the result doesn’t make sense given the circumstances.
To the north, a trail leads to the Field of Ruin. Following this path through to the northwest mountain passage will take the characters through the Primal Wellspring region, bypassing the strongholds of the Legion of Dusk.

Those strongholds—Fort Leor and Fort Durron—lie to the west. A well-used path makes travel along that route easier, but the area is often patrolled by soldiers of the Legion of Dusk.

Regardless of which route the characters take, they must venture through Unclaimed Territory before making their way to the Temple of Aclazotz.

Discovery and Pursuit. One hour after the characters fought the guards, another patrol enters the executioner’s chamber and discovers the escape. A bell-toll alarm sounds out within the fort, and a patrol of twelve guards is sent out to comb the area for the prisoners and the duplicitous Alante. Additionally, beacon towers between Conqueror’s Foothold, Fort Leor, and Fort Durron light up, making it difficult for characters who are not with the Legion of Dusk to move along the beach unseen. Any Dexterity (Stealth) checks made by the characters to avoid guards are made with disadvantage.

Two hours after the escape, Vona discovers that Alante is attempting to claim the Hierophant’s Chalice before he does. The Butcher of Magan assembles a force and sends them out to find the relic first. Vona’s relic hunters are comprised of two vampire soldiers (use guard statistics), a human cleric (use priest statistics), and a human scout, all on horseback. They take the most direct route to the Temple of Aclazotz, past Fort Leor and Fort Durron across the beach. However, they subsequently become lost in the Unclaimed Territory, and can be randomly encountered there.

Danger on the Beach. If the characters continue along the shoreline, they come upon the wreckage of numerous ships. Among the dead is the orc Captain Beelzebufo from the pirate ship Relentless, on which both Ellie and Turk served. Any character who succeeds on a DC 10 Intelligence (Investigation) check notes that the orc appears to have died from stab wounds rather than by drowning.

Any character surveilling the area closely with a successful DC 15 Wisdom (Perception) check notices movement in the waves.

Rising from the surf, skeletons dressed in the tattered clothes of pirates shamble toward the shore!

The six skeletons attack, gaining surprise if all the characters failed to notice them.

Field of Ruin

It takes four hours to reach this area from Conqueror’s Foothold.

Dozens upon dozens of bodies are strewn about the field in various states of decomposition. The ruined banners of fallen war parties billow in the sea breeze.

The characters can follow a river north to a mountain passage through the Primal Wellspring. To the south is the shoreline. Fort Leor and Fort Durron are to the west, within sight of the beach.

A successful DC 15 Wisdom (Perception) check reveals the presence of scavengers in the field. Three medium raptors (use deinonychus statistics) feast on corpses to the west. If the characters notice the raptors, they can attempt a group Stealth check against the creatures’ passive Wisdom (Perception) of 13. On a failed group check, or if the characters don’t notice the raptors, the raptors spot the party and attack.

Random Encounters. If the party travels along the shore near the forts, use the following table if a random encounter is rolled.

Fort Leor and Fort Durron

A simple structure surrounded by a wooden palisade, Fort Leor is the nearest fortress to Conqueror’s Foothold. It takes one day of travel for the characters to arrive here.

Fort Leor stands in the middle of the beach, alongside a river that winds down from the northern mountains to empty into the ocean. Surrounded by a wooden palisade, armed patrols march along the fort’s parapet walls.

Fort Durron, near the Temple of Aclazotz, is a stronghold isolated on an island and home to the armada of the Legion of Dusk. It takes one day to travel here from Fort Leor.

Fort Durron rises tall on an island to the south. Another bastioned fortress, not unlike Conqueror’s Foothold, its looming presence in the distance is made even more ominous by the Dusk Legion dreadnought moored at its stone pier.

Avoiding Notice. The characters must pass near each fort. They can use magic or attempt a group Dexterity (Stealth) check (DC 15 to succeed during the day, DC 10 to succeed at night) to travel unseen. At either fort, if the characters are spotted, a patrol of twelve guards mounted on riding horses moves to intercept. The guards ask the characters their reasons for traveling through the area, and if not convinced by their story, move to attack and apprehend them.

Primal Wellspring

It takes two days to reach this area from the Field of Ruin.

Following the natural path up through mountainous terrain, you eventually make your way down again, moving through a lush canopy of vines into a vivid jungle. Ahead of you, a waterfall erupts from a great stone sculpture jutting out from the side of a cliff, sourced by a powerful spring.
The area around the waterfall spring is covered in thick foliage and tangles of vines, making it difficult terrain. Because there is no natural path through this region, the party’s navigator must succeed on a DC 15 Wisdom (Survival) check to find the way through to the next region. If the party is moving at a slow pace, the navigator gains a +5 bonus to the check, while a fast pace imposes a −5 penalty. The party’s navigator can repeat the check after the party spends 1d6 hours trying to get back on course.

Lurking Threat. Any character who succeeds on a DC 15 Wisdom (Perception or Survival) check notes movement beneath the water’s surface, masked by the splash of the waterfall. The Primal Wellspring is home to a snapping sailback (use giant crocodile statistics). Disturbing the spring in any manner results in attracting the attention of the creature, which attacks immediately.

The gaping maw of an enormous beast surfaces from the pool, its giant red fin sluicing water across the shore.

Unclaimed Territory

It takes one day to reach this area from Fort Durron or the Primal Wellspring.

The mist of the mountains clears to reveal a rainforest. The tall trees and foliage around you are alive with movement, and macaws and parrots sing a cacophonous tune.

An Unlikely Ally. Any character who succeeds on a DC 15 Wisdom (Perception) check while moving within the Unclaimed Territory determines that the party is being followed. In response to being spotted (or at any opportune moment), a vampire cleric named Mavren reveals himself to the characters (use cult fanatic statistics).

By all outward appearances, Mavren has gone mad. A tall figure with dark hair, sunken eyes, and pallid skin, he is an apostle of the prophet Arguel, and wears the tattered robes of the clergy of the Legion of Dusk. But unknown to the characters, Mavren is secretly under the control of a demon named Zotz—the spawn of a dread bat-god.

Mavren knows the following information, which he shares in the course of any conversation with the characters:

- The prophet Arguel had a vision that led him into the jungles of Ixalan with the Hierophant’s Chalice.
- The Temple of Aclazotz is hidden in the nearby jungle, four hours away.
- A murderous creature lurks around the temple, known to Mavren as “the night horror.”
Any character who succeeds on a DC 10 Wisdom (Insight) check determines that Mavren believes he’s working for some higher purpose, but that he is also hiding something. If a character succeeds on a DC 20 Charisma (Intimidation or Persuasion) check after pressing Mavren, the cleric reveals through his ravings that the Temple of Aclazotz is the home of his demonic master. Mavren can lead the party directly to the Temple of Aclazotz. If the characters decline his aid, the party’s navigator must succeed on a DC 15 Wisdom (Survival) check to find the way to the temple. If the party is moving at a slow pace, the navigator gains a +5 bonus to the check, while a fast pace imposes a −5 penalty. The party’s navigator can repeat the check after the party spends 1d6 hours trying to get back on course.

Random Encounters. As the party travels through the Unclaimed Territory, use the following table if a random encounter is rolled.

Temple of Aclazotz

Nearly hidden by the jungle, a stone temple is overgrown with vines. Its broad steps lead up to a darkened entrance, and are caked with a red-black substance. Absolute silence hangs in the area around the temple, as though the site is devoid of life.

Any character who succeeds on a DC 10 Intelligence (Investigation) check reveals the substance on the steps to be blood. It is impossible to determine how many bodies have been dragged into the temple.

The Night Horror. If Mavren led the adventurers here, he urges them to enter quickly, before they wake the creature that lurks in the area.

The characters must succeed on a DC 15 group Dexterity (Stealth) check to pass undetected by this chu-chupacabra, which attacks if it senses any intrusion into its territory. Mavren abandons the party and retreats into the temple if the characters are attacked.

Arguel’s End. The interior of the temple is a single chamber with a ceiling thirty feet high. It is unlit, and characters must use light or have darkvision to explore.

The trail from the steps leads into a stone chamber. A strong stench fills the air and the temperature is significantly cooler here than it was outside in the humidity of the rainforest. In the center of the chamber stands a lone altar, upon which lies a corpse.

Characters who move within ten feet of the altar note that the corpse is little more than a desiccated husk. It wears the robes of a marshal from the Legion of Dusk and holds an ornate silver goblet in its hands.
Any character who succeeds on a DC 15 Intelligence (Arcana or History) check recognizes the remains as those of Arguel, the prophet rumored to have brought the Hierophant’s Chalice to the temple—and that it is the actual chalice he holds in his hands. A source of endless blood, the chalice activates when a single drop of blood is placed within it, filling to the brim with sanguineous fluid.

Demonic Guardians. Hanging from the ceiling above the altar are four blight keepers (use giant bat statistics) and a demon named Zotz (use vrock statistics). If Mavren fled from the chupacabra attack, he alerts Zotz, his demonic master, of the party’s presence outside. Otherwise, if the characters arrive by day, they find the creatures sleeping and can surprise them if they attack at once and make no loud noise. At night, the characters must succeed on a DC 10 group Dexterity (Stealth) check to enter the temple undetected and get the drop on the demon and its minions.

The spawn of a forgotten bat-god, the demon Zotz means to spread plague and corruption across Ixalan. He has long used his influence upon the insane Mavren to bring prey to the temple. Seeing how the Hierophant’s Chalice could be used as a means to broker peace between the Legion of Dusk and the local inhabitants by reducing the need for blood sacrifices, Zotz protects the item and attempts to corrupt it with his demonic essence.

Mavren aids his master in combat. If he survives after Zotz is defeated, the cleric is no longer under the sway of the demon, but he remembers and is haunted by all the horrible things he’s done in Zotz’s name.

Conclusion

After retrieving the Hierophant’s Chalice from the Temple of Aclazotz, the characters can make their way to a rendezvous point south of Fort Durron, previously arranged by Alante. They are met by two emissaries from the Order of the Five Sacraments, who fulfill the terms of the various agreements made with the party members.

Innate Spellcasting. The dryad’s innate spellcasting ability is Charisma (spell save DC 14). The dryad can innately cast the following spells, requiring no material components:

- At will: druidcraft
- 3/day each: entangle, goodberry
- 1/day each: barkskin, pass without trace, shillelagh

Magic Resistance. The dryad has advantage on saving throws against spells and other magical effects.

Speak with Beasts and Plants. The dryad can communicate with beasts and plants as if they shared a language.

Tree Stride. Once on her turn, the dryad can use 10 feet of her movement to step magically into one living tree within her reach and emerge from a second living tree within 60 feet of the first tree, appearing in an unoccupied space within 5 feet of the second tree. Both trees must be Large or bigger.

Actions

Club. Melee Weapon Attack: +2 to hit (+6 to hit with shillelagh), reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 2 (1d4) bludgeoning damage, or 8 (1d8 + 4) bludgeoning damage with shillelagh.

Fey Charm. The dryad targets one humanoid or beast that she can see within 30 feet of her. If the target can see the dryad, it must succeed on a DC 14 Wisdom saving throw or be magically charmed. The charmed creature regards the dryad as a trusted friend to be heeded and protected. Although the target isn’t under the dryad’s control, it takes the dryad’s requests or actions in the most favorable way it can.

Each time the dryad or its allies do anything harmful to the target, it can repeat the saving throw, ending the effect on itself on a success. Otherwise, the effect lasts 24 hours or until the dryad dies, is on a different plane of existence from the target, or ends the effect as a bonus action. If a target’s saving throw is successful, the target is immune to the dryad’s Fey Charm for the next 24 hours.

The dryad can have no more than one humanoid and up to three beasts charmed at a time.

Career Notes
Alante belongs to the Order of the Five Sacraments, a sect of the church that believes in establishing a trade relationship with the Sun Empire. She is opposed to any actions within the Legion of Dusk, who seek to conquer and subjugate the Sun Empire. Her kind nature ensured that she was posted at the Conqueror’s Foothold to administer last rites to prisoners about to die. However, she spied upon a secret plan set in motion by Vona, the Butcher of Magan to secure a powerful artifact; the Hierophant’s Chalice, said to have been carried by Arguel, a prophet known for his fanciful and dark visions, to that place for some unknown purpose. Seeking to gain favor in her order and in opposition to the Adanto sect, she stole the treasure map that leads to the location of the temple. Under cover of night, she freed the prisoners awaiting final judgment to help her navigate the terrain and retrieve the artifact for her superiors before Vona’s forces can obtain it for their use.

Artinoq serves as a scout in the Emperor's Vanguard under the command of his father Rouxil. A natural leader and selfless soldier, he has been eager to show his father that he is worthy of one day taking over his command once he leaves the field. However, they were captured during a vicious counterattack by the Legion of Dusk while on their last scouting mission to Conqueror's Foothold. Sentenced to death, all seemed lost until Alante appeared and made a deal to free them. Artinoq desires peace much like his father, but his future role in a stable region is unclear as he's spent his young career serving the Sun Empire in battle. He has a velociraptor beast companion named Sharkbait that has served with him for years in the field.

Ellie was the first mate and spelljack aboard the Relentless. She was known for her acumen at sea and her mysterious arcane tattoos inscribed with flame sigils. Ever the opportunist, she rose quickly through the ranks of the crew and was planning a mutiny to oust the captain due to his gross incompetence. His last foolish order saw the pirates in battle with a galleon much too big for their ship, and the goblins in their zeal overloaded a firecannon and blew the ship up. Ellie survived the explosion but was plunged into the sea, and washed ashore with Turk near Conqueror’s Foothold. Both were immediately arrested for piracy against the Legion of Dusk, and were due to be executed before being freed by Alante. Ellie brokered a deal – she would help Alante retrieve her artifact, and then she’d be granted a captured ship as payment for her efforts.

Rouxil and his son Artinoq are a part of the Emperor’s Vanguard, an elite fighting force that has been fighting skirmishes against the Legion of Dusk ever since their arrival. On their last battle, both of them were the sole survivors from their scouting patrol meant to assess the perimeter defenses of Conqueror’s Foothold. They were placed in prison and sentenced to death. Alante heard of their battle acumen, and decided to free them to help her. Rouxil wants Alante to succeed and have her order usurp influence of the region. He believes that if the Order of the Five Sacraments is able to convince the rest of the Legion of Dusk that a reciprocal arrangement with the Sun Empire is beneficial, that he will be able to bring an end to the conflict in this region of Ixalan.

Turk loves the life of a pirate, and particularly relishes his role as one of the Fathom Fleet’s lead boarders, assigned to suppress resistance on captured vessels by intimidation or force. He lives for plunder, and since his job is so risky, he often gets a prime share of the booty. However, his last mission attacking a Legion of Dusk galleon went terribly wrong, and he was thrown from his ship the Relentless by a malfunctioning firecannon explosion. He and the first mate washed ashore near Conqueror’s Foothold, where he was immediately recognized by soldiers he had once encountered on a previous raid. The two of them were thrown in prison awaiting execution until Alante showed up to free them to help her navigate through the interior to find an artifact. Turk knows that there’s got to be much more treasure than just some chalice, and he’s determined to claim a large enough share so he can live out the rest of his life in debauchery.

Velisha is a shaper, a weaver of nature magic. Her tribe dwells in a forested community known as Highbrench, and she serves as a guide. In this role, she was employed by a Dusk Legion lieutenant under Vona’s command to escort a wayward patrol back to Conqueror’s Foothold. When she arrived, the lieutenant claimed that some of the soldiers she had been escorting had stolen from them. After attempting to fight off the soldiers and escape, she was captured and sentenced to death. Alante freed her from her fate and told her of what she needed done in exchange. Velisha knows the interior well, and has heard that the Temple of Aclazotz contains a dark unnatural force. She means to expel it.
